Implementing Strategy Making Strategy Happen
Dec 08, 2021 · For this to happen, we need to become excellent at making things happen; We need to turn strategy into reality. One thing you must do when implementing a QMS in your company is you must make many decisions. However, the best form of decision you could make is the one which relies on verifiable facts and evidence. Static strategy tools seek to solve the strategy problem by extending this set of stable relationships, e.g. “profitability = some complex function of product development capability”. Since a company’s sales clearly change over time, there must be something further back up the causal chain that makes this happen. Concepts that provide a simple framework for the leader who would implement good strategy are: (1) embed strategy in the organization’s culture while focusing the organization on a few key strategic capabilities; (2) build a good team, and (3) remember that any strategy is temporary at some point in the future. The purpose of this strategy is to inspire, activate and lead us in our decision-making and goal setting so that we cooperate and achieve the big positive changes we want to see in the world, and for the entire IKEA ecosystem. This strategy gives us a roadmap to follow and outlines a strong,
