The Invisible Voices

Hearing voices that other people do not is a common phenomenon. The Mental Health Foundation states: “between 5% and 28% of the population hear voices that invisible energetic entities are attacking the Human race in many different ways: They cause and spread diseases, and as a result science and medicine cannot explain. Science and Medicine are unaware of these energetic invisible devious entities and therefore cannot understand hearing voices that others do not! These entities may be thought to "be the voice" of the invisible creatures that are hot starting to attack the planet again."

It is our feeling that through music, poetry, and drawings reflect their growing up in the natural world—McGrath in the Pacific Northwest, Overbeck in the mountains of Colorado. James McGrath is a poet who grew up in the Pacific Northwest. His poems, and Margreta Overbeck's drawings, celebrate and illuminate the essence of the natural world from ants through mountains to wolves. Their combination in "Speaking with Magpies." The latter received a Finalist Award in Poetry in the 2008 New Mexico Book Awards.

The invisible girl, a recent novel by Código, is a story about a young girl named Eloise who is missing from her home. Her family has no idea where she is, and the police are searching for her. The story follows the family as they try to find Eloise and uncover the truth behind her disappearance.

Through the family’s search, they learn that there are many other girls who have disappeared in the same way. The family begins to suspect that there is a serial killer on the loose, and they set out to find him.

The story is a combination of mystery and adventure, as the family travels all over the country to find Eloise. The book is a heartwarming tale of a family’s love and determination to find their beloved daughter.

According to the CDC, Lyme Disease is the fastest growing vector-borne disease in the USA with over 300,000 cases per year—about 34 cases per hour. So why has this disease been so misunderstood and denied? Read the 27 stories inside "The Waiting Room: Invisible Voices of Lyme" to hear the struggles and the lessons we’ve learned through our journey with Lyme. It is our collaborative hope that the world will have a better understanding of what we go through, and that our family, friends, and doctors will be able to see and understand our presence in the world.

The poetry in this book is a combination of my pain and experiences as a child and throughout my life. This book is the reflection of my mind, pain, and experiences while growing as an individual. This poetry reflects the trauma, hurt, and emotions that have shaped me into the person I am today. It is a reflection of my life and the challenges I have faced. In this book, I hope to convey the emotions and thoughts that I have experienced. I want people to feel the pain and emotions that I have felt, and to understand that we all have our own struggles and challenges.
