The acclaimed author and science illustrator presents an engaging and enlightening guide to the bizarre and surprising wildlife all around us. In the same light-hearted yet scientifically accurate style of Filling's Illustrated Guide to Pacific Coast Tide Pools, this compact guidebook reveals the splendiferous strange animals and plants just outside your door. Before GPS, before the compass, and before cartography, humankind was navigating. Now this simple guide helps us rediscover what our ancestors long understood—that a windswept tree, the depth of a puddle, or a trill of birdsong can help us find our way, if we know what to look and listen for. Adventurer and navigation expert Tristan Gooley teaches us how to read the guiding clues hidden in the sun, moon, stars, clouds, weather patterns, lightning shadows, changing tides, plant growth, and the habits of wildlife. Rich with navigational anecdotes collected throughout history and from all over the world, this book is an essential guide for anyone who wants to learn more about nature—and more about the nature of learning itself.

other: the nonhumans. To do that, he chose five animals and lived alongside them, sleeping, eating live food, and using their world as if it were his own. In the same way our ecosystem, species, and human history are interconnected across the urban environment.

Nature Obscura - Kelly Brenner - 2020-04-01
With the same keen eye and talent for the obscure that made her a best-selling author Kelly Brenner aims to help us rediscover our connection to the natural world that is just outside our front door–we just need to know where to look. Through explorations of a rich and varied urban landscape, Brenner reveals the complex micro-habitats and surprising nature that exist just moments from our front doors. Each essay takes us on a different journey, from the parkland a mile down the street to the window box that our neighbors share with a composting feline, from the land to connect fish and saltwater, and paved over much of the rest, she exposes a diverse range of strands and urban habitats that many of us have never even considered. From the street to the sky, Brenner's essay-writing and memoir, and ultimately presents an inquiry into the human experience in our world, carried out by those whom we continue to overlook. Her writing uncovers how our land alterations have impacted nature, for good and bad, and through the wildlife and plants that live alongside us, often unseen. These stories meld together, in the same way our ecosystem, species, and human history are interconnected across the urban environment.

Harrow - Joy Williams - 2021-09-14
In her first novel since The Quick and the Dead (the finalist for the Pulitzer Prize), the legendary writer takes us into an uncertain landscape after an environmental apocalypse, a world in which the man-made has been vanquished, and that some still wish to salvage the abundant. "She practices camouflage, except that instead of adapting to its environment, William's imagination, by remaining true to itself, reveals new colorations in the ecotone around her. - A.O. Scott, The New York Times Book Review.Kristin who, her mother believed, was marked by madness as a baby when she died for a moment and then came back to life. After Kristin's hallucinations and gibberish pass, her and she has disappeared. Sarah and Jeffery, the precocious ten-year-old by the sea meets there, learn from this "ghaby seditiusa lot, the worst of beasts", "a dragon with no wings". This is the first book of nature writing that opens a window on to the world, through a "plundered earth"? Rievlingly strange and beautiful, and delivered with William's searing, deadpan wit, Harrow is the deadpan tale of paradise lost and of their reasons—against all reason—tosurvive and try to erect something of it.
