This book illustrates that external factors, especially international political processes interacting with large-scale ecological and demographic changes, are the primary cause of problems experienced by the Maasai and other people in the Third World. The Maasai are Muslim farmers formerly independent as part of the sultanate of Dar Fur. Tully examines the local processes by which the Maasai became economically, politically, and culturally incorporated into the Sudan, and thus into a nexus of global forces. Culture and Context in Sudan clarifies the complicated macro-micro linkages responsible for the continuing environmental degradation, increased inequality, and cultural assimilation that is so detrimental to the people of Dar Maasai. The author analyzes new data as well as previously-existing information to demonstrate the multi-level process of change and how it determines individual choices.

In Darfur - Muhammad al-Umi - 2015-05-08
A merchant's account of his travels through an independent African state Muhammad ibn 'Umar al-Tunisi (d. 1274/1857) belonged to a family of Tunisian merchants trading with Egypt and what is now Sudan. Al-Tunisi was raised in Cairo and a graduate of al-Azhar. In 1803, at the age of fourteen, al-Tunisi set off for the Sudan. He followed the Forty Days Road, was reunited with his father, and eventually took over the management of the considerable estates granted to his father by the sultan of Darfur. In Darfur al-Tunisi's remarkable account of his ten-year sojourn in this independent state. In Volume One, al-Tunisi relates the history of the family, his journey from Egypt to Darfur, and the reign of the noted sultan 'Abd al-Rahman al-Rasheid. In Darfur combines literature, history, ethnography, linguistics, and travel adventure, and most unusually for its time, includes fifty-two illustrations, all drawn by the author. In Darfur is a rare example of an Arabic description of Africa on the eve of Western colonization and vividly evokes a world in which travel was untrammeled by bureaucracy. borders were fluid, and startling coincidences appear almost mundane. A bilingual Arabic-English edition.

Difficult & Dangerous Roads - Hugh Clapperton - 2000
Hugh Clapperton was one of the first British explorers to enter the central Sudan, but his journals have never been published before. Recently discovered in South Africa, they show him to be one of the most sensitive and sympathetic travellers, his observations untainted by any sense of moral superiority. Hugh Clapperton has a sharp eye for detail, it is a wind-stiller magician, the effect of the evil eye or slave skeletons clustered around well heads. He hears musicians in jarkal-beaded masks and is a wedding rings. He has a gift for friendship, floating locals, offering himself to women and doling out in the company of both digeted tribal shanks and scarce renegades like Mustapha the Red.

Kingdoms of the Sudan - R.S. O'Fahey - 2016-10-04
This book, first published in 1974, is a study of the two states which dominated the northern and western regions of Sudan from the sixteenth to the twenty-first century: the Funj kingdom of Simiae and the Kura sultanate of Dar Fur. Until now the history of these two states has been neglected in comparison with that of the western states of the Sudanese Belt. The authors spent years researching the documentation of the period and the present book is a concise survey of their findings, comprising history, literature, politics, economics, trade and religion.
