When African Theology was first formulated, women played just a small role. In 1899 Mercy Amala Odoye set out to change this by creating the Circle of Concerned African Women in Theology (COWAT). This book traces the Circle of Concerned African Women in Theology from its inception to the present, detailing the impact the group has had on the theological and social issues that have emerged since.

As African theology matured, women continued to play a more substantial role. This book traces the Circle of Concerned African Women Theologians from its inception to the present, detailing the impact the group has had on the theological and social issues that have emerged since.

The Circle in the Square Theatre - Sheila Hickey Garvey - 2020-11-30

The Circle in the Square Theatre profoundly changed ideas of what American theatre could be. Founded by Theodore Mann and Jose Quintero in an abandoned Off-Broadway nightclub just after WWII, it was a catalyst for the Off-Broadway movement. The building had a unique arena-shaped performance space that became Circle in the Square. Southward promoted the interests of its members with the larger aim of raising the profile of ecological and environmental science in Britain. Given public anxiety over the environment and the loss of ecosystems, his actions were well-timed. Ecology, which had long been the scientific margin of the first half of the twentieth century, came to be viewed as a science central to modern existence. The book illustrates its importance to many areas. Members of the Circle of Concerned Women Theologians have acted as government advisors in the areas of conservation and biodiversity, resource management, pest control, food policy, genetically modified crops, sustainable agriculture, international development, defence against biological weapons, and epidemiology and infectious disease control. In recounting the science they carried out, and how they made their careers, the book reflects also on the role of the group, and the nature of scientific success.

What is the men's movement? Hundreds of thousands of men all across North America are forming councils, lodges, and participating in "wild man weekends," inspired by the mythopoetic writings and personal testimonies of such authors as Robert Bly, Sam Ken, and Joe List. What do you need to be part of? Robert Bly's practical advice to his gatherings of men is to go home and form small groups. This book, fifteen years in the making and written by one of the foremost promoters of the men's movement, is the original handbook for forming and guiding these small support circles. Here's what this book gives you: This step-by-step manual grows out of Bill Kauth's twenty-five-year career as an anthropologist and educator at Getsemani, California's Men's Institute. It will help the organizer or leader to start a group, find new members, solve group problems, and create rituals and activities that promote honesty, self-disclosure, and fun.

Biographies in the History of Physics - Christian Forstner - 2020-07-22
This book sheds new light on the biographical approach in the history of physics by including the biographies of scientific objects, institutions, and concepts. What is a biography? Can biographies also be written for non-human subjects like scientific instruments, institutions or concepts? The respective chapters of this book discuss these controversial questions using examples from the history of physics. By approaching biography as metaphor, it transcends the boundaries between various perspectives on the history of physics, and enriches our grasp of the past.
