Collaborative Leadership and Global Transformation — Roland Lekeys - 2000-01-01

Collaborative Leadership and Global Transformation presents an incisive analysis on each of our individual, social and global transformation. Change is intrinsic to the transformational process which occurs through human agency. But human agency is always in the service of particular objectives and goals. In this way, it is our subjective consciousness, our particular desires and ambitions, that drive our individual and social transformation. The authors argue that it is only through the development of collaborative leadership and transformation at the personal, group and societal level that we can realize the transformation we desire. The book will be of interest to students and scholars of leadership, management, and organizational behavior, and anyone involved in the field of collaborative leadership.
